Theme— The Mass

The last sentence of today's gospel makes it clear how the story is not to be interpreted. It is a mistake to see Jesus as someone who during his public ministry wished to prove something by the use of his supernatural powers. The reluctance of Jesus to have this incident kept quiet is indication of that. Rather today's gospel is first an invitation to its original hearers to have faith. That same invitation is extended to us here and now by the Christian community.

Reflection

Within the House of God

The church is always open
To worship and to pray,
And give you faith and guidance
To face each new-born day.

Within this holy house of God
You will find strength anew,
And inner peace will find its way
In mind and soul of you.

Amidst its walls of silence
You'll find God always near,
To help you face each problem
And fill your heart with cheer.

Harold F. Mohn.
